

You will hear from Lloyd George before this campaign is over. He starts off, "My sword is in my hand." That means a fight that the "British Bulldog" will remember. He says, "I am for the people, for the nation against any party." The already disturbed land owners of Great Britain have sleepless hours ahead. Lloyd George's theory is, that those that HAVE should PAY. Those that the nation protects should pay for protection. Lloyd George, while practical dictator of England and of Europe, has kept his real character to himself. There was bigger work than developing Lloyd George's radicalism.

Now you will get the radicalism, the kind that frightened Tory land and mine owners early in this century, the kind that will frighten them more before Lloyd George goes back into the ground.

That earnest publication, THE SINGLE TAX REVIEW, suggests in the October number that Lloyd George is a single taxer. He is not that, not a man of one remedy, one idea, or of any settled "ism." But he did say in 1903 at New Castle:

"It is all very well to produce bills for the housing of the working classes. They will never be effective until we tackle the taxation of land values."

He also said in Glasgow, early in 1914:

"There is one deep, underlying principle of all sound, just, beneficent land laws in every land—that land in all countries was created by Providence for the benefit of all those who dwell therein, and that any privileges, rights, or interests attaching for the time being, whatever their origin may be, to the ownership of land that are inconsistent with this great purpose, ought, in the interests of the community, to be ruthlessly overridden."

Lloyd George doesn't believe in single tax as preached by its specialists. He knows that human selfishness and its passion for individual land ownership must be used in developing the earth. But he does believe that this earth was intended for the fifteen hundred million people that live on it, not for a few with cunning that enables them to monopolize that earth and its wealth. There is a REAL radical loose in England—a good thing for the world.

John D. Rockefeller, jr., praises Henry Ford, comparing him with his father, "They are both self-made. Ford is a man of fine spirit, earnestness, sincerity, simplicity."

The admiration is mutual. Henry Ford told this writer he considered Mr. Rockefeller's Standard Oil Company the finest, best-managed business concern in the United States, and Rockefeller, which means nowadays John D. Rockefeller, jr., the ideal American business man.

At that time he showed the writer a small eight-cylinder engine to be used in an automobile to sell at $250—which then seemed impossible. He expected to arrange so that anybody could drive to a Standard Oil station, take out his engine, pay $25 difference, and put in a new one.

Rockefeller and Ford, admiring each other, recalls in the realm of finance the admiration of Caesar for Alexander. Ford and Rockefeller are Caesar and Alexander of modern armies—those armies of little dollars, numbering hundreds of millions, that never cat or sleep, always fight, always obey orders, and have little young ones, called dividends, every year.

REDS BARRON IS BRILLIANT

Team Captain Is Entire Eleven on Offense and Half of It on Defense.

By LOUIS A. DOUGHER.

ANNAPOLIS, Oct. 21.—One man cannot defeat eleven, not even though that lone man be the formidable Reds Barron, captain and halfback of the widely-known Golden Tornado. Therefore, the Navy won today's clash from Georgia Tech, 13 to 0. It was brilliantly played in spots, slovenly played in others, and cleanly at all times. Remarkable as it may appear, not a single penalty was inflicted by the officials. The teams fought hard, but there was no roughness marking many games of equal caliber.

Barron Most Brilliant.

Easily the most brilliant athlete on the field was Reds Barron, captain of the Southerners. He was the entire Tech eleven on offense and fully half of it on defense. He carried the ball around the end, off the tackle and through the middle. He took forward passes and he intercepted them. He was the one and only ground-gainer Georgia Tech boasted.

On defense it was Barron who usually got the blue-jerseyed runner whenever McDonough or Matthews missed him. And whenever he hit a runner, that midshipman stopped right where he was. Occasionally that runner went backwards a bit. Barron left little doubt in the matter.

And when the final whistle sounded, with the Golden Tornado slumped down to a sweet evening breeze over the back porch, that same Barron, who had done three men's work all day in the face of heavy odds, romped off the field with head up, eyes flashing and a smile on his lips. He was unconquerable.

Tech's Shifts Explode.

Georgia Tech's famous shift plays exploded with a loud bang in the very first period when opposed to that terrific charging line of the Middies. Only when Barron took the ball did the Atlanta team gain with any steadiness. He did not need a shift to assist him. At times it seemed to bother him, letting the Navy tackle and ends in on him too soon.

It was thought that Tech might make a flashy start. It had always done that when playing Pittsburgh and did it again last year against Penn State. The flashy start was absent today. The fast-charging hemlocks in the Navy line knew just what to do. They shifted with the foe and then jumped straight ahead. The result was a complete and stunning surprise to the Southerners, though they fought desperately to the end.

The Navy scored its first touchdown in the first period, following a poor punt by McWhorter on Tech's 20-yard line. A first down came quickly on two short drives off tackle and a double pass, Cullen to Taylor.

With the ball on the 7-yard line, Captain Conroy, who played brilliantly for his team, jumped through the middle of the line for five yards and then Steve Barchet, the Navy's best back, plowed off left tackle and

Price of Tires
To Take Jump,
Wall St. Says

NEW YORK, Oct. 21.

HIGHER tire prices are expected, the Wall Street Journal says today, in the following article:

"Leading rubber company executives say that the prices now prevailing are the lowest on record, being more than 40 per cent below the 1920 peak levels and about 28 per cent below the highest price in 1920.

"Since the August reduction which averaged 10 per cent on cord tires and 15 per cent on fabric casings, the margin of profit has been unsatisfactory, especially for the larger companies.

"The recent advance of nearly 10 cents a pound in crude rubber, together with a stiffening cotton fabric market, has made the general situation worse."

Man Confesses in Chinatown Trunk Case—Driving Me Crazy, He Says.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Oct. 21.—Walking into Central police station here today, Willis Wolfe, thirty-one, told police that he murdered Elsie Siegel, pretty settlement worker in a Chinese dive in New York city in July 1919.

"I couldn't stand it any longer," he told Police Captain Loepker. "I've just got to tell someone. It's driving me crazy."

Wolfe declared that he was sitting in a Mott street dive with a woman he called "Slats," when Miss Siegel appeared. "Slats" told him to kill the settlement worker, Wolfe relates, so he took a club and beat her to death.

Police are inclined to doubt the story, but have taken Wolfe's picture and will forward it, together with finger prints, to the New York police.

PEOPLE VS. CLASS,
LLOYD GEORGE CRY

Former Premier Bases Fight on Struggle Against "Vested Interests."

TO USE "BARE KNUCKLES"

Foreign Policy of Predecessor To Be Continued by Law For Present.

By DAVID M. CHURCH.

International News Service.

LONDON, Oct. 21.—"The slums against the classes!" That is the battle cry of Lloyd George against his political enemies, it was revealed today in his speech at Leeds. The former premier is determined to base his political future upon the struggle between the common people and the so-called vested interests.

A Bare Knuckles Fight.

The premier was jubilant tonight over the ovation given him here and also in Leeds and Easton. He told his friends that he was going to fight to the finish and fight with bare knuckles.

"I stand by the people," said Lloyd George. "I do not think they are taking their orders at the dictation of clubs in the west end of London. I am being opposed in the Tory party by a few wealthy members."

Lloyd George was wildly cheered at Euston. He waved his hand and came in answer to the greetings.

Andrew Bonar Law had an audience with King George this afternoon, when they discussed the British Near East policy. It is understood that the British policy in the Near East will not be changed much from the policy that prevailed while Lloyd George was premier.

Prominent members of the Unionist party, notably Lord Derby and his friends, have signified their intention of supporting A. Bonar Law, the new premier. But in spite of this strength it is feared by many members of the Tory party that Mr. Law's new government will not last very long. Leaders of the Liberal party have pledged their support to Lloyd George, indicating that the Tories will be divided if it comes to the point where some Unionists want to support the Liberals and others wish to carry on with their own party.

Lord Derby's pronouncement of his own willingness to co-operate with the Liberals is interpreted as tantamount to admission that he cannot control the anti-Unionist party. This shows that the Unionist has been broken up into factions which is entirely to the advantage of former Premier Lloyd George.

It has been years since former Premier Lloyd George made an appeal to the "Limehouse" section of British politics. The "Limehouse" is the dock section of London, where the poor people live. Lloyd George believes that he will swing many votes from the section in which the poor people live, as he did in the last general election several years ago. In his last campaign Lloyd George made special appeal to the residents of the (Continued on Page 3, Column 5.)

Three Million Russians
Still Near Starvation

MOSCOW, Oct. 21.—Three millions of people in Russia are still threatened with starvation, according to official figures revealed today. M. Kamenoff, head of the Russian relief organization, has asked the American relief organization to feed 3,000,000 persons during the coming winter.

The total Russian harvest is put at 47,000,000 tons of grain, a "short" harvest for this country.

NEW LEGION HEAD
OUTLINES POLICIES

To Begin Immediate Fight for Country's Recognition of Responsibility to Veterans.

COMPENSATION DEMANDED

Nothing Can Stop Eventual Payment of Bonus, Owsley Declares in Statement.

By J. BART CAMPBELL.

International News Service.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 21.—"Americanism" is to be the key note of the administration of Alvin M. Owsley, national commander of the American Legion, it was announced here tonight, following a series of conferences between him and his "cabinet" of advisers before he started back to his home town of Denton, Tex., today.

"Americanization" is last but not least in Owsley's platform. Hospitalization, rehabilitation, soldier bonus, and Americanization, was explained.

New Commander's Policies.

As the retiring director of the Legion's National Americanism Commission and now the "scrappy" Legion commander, Owsley said: "The Legion does not have within itself a patented right to 100 per cent Americanism but certainly there is not in existence an organization possessed of a more privileged right to speak for the defense of this country than the men and women who make up its ranks."

"Let us resolve that we shall be even more highly devoted to the Legion's cause in the future than we have in the past, for by serving the Legion we serve America."

"Let us make a strong resolution that we shall make of America a finer place of sympathy, a greater love for our fellow men and a fuller realization of the hopes of our fathers and the hopes and ambitions in our own breasts."

Hard Work Ahead.

A year of battle and hard work confronted the new Legion commander, as he said that he desired to pledge his best efforts to carry out his platform.

"Down there in the convention hall where they elected me," he said, "I pledged my best for the fight for the four pillars on which American Legion work stands—hospitalization, rehabilitation, adjusted compensation and Americanization."

"Whatever the setbacks we have received from politicians, the American Legion, with its whole strength—and its strength is growing daily in American life through its 11,000 posts all over our nation—is carrying on the fight for those four principles."

"Our wounded and disabled buddies have died too often on the steps of contract hospitals, barred from entrance by barriers of red tape. They kept their pledge to America. (Continued on Page 3, Column 7.)

District Girl In Auto
Wreck In Baltimore

BALTIMORE, Oct. 21.—Two automobiles were demolished and one man seriously injured today when an automobile driven by Miss Jeanette McWinggar, 2400 Eighth street, Washington, crashed into a machine operated by Alfred M. Epps, at Monroe and Ramsey streets. John McKinrick, forty-three years old, a passenger in Epps' machine, was hurled to the street, sustaining a fractured skull.

Epps, coming east on Ramsey street, failed to give the other machine the right of way, and Miss McWinggar's automobile crashed into his car, driving it against an electric light pole on the corner.

Epps suffered painful cuts and bruises, but was not seriously injured. Miss McWinggar escaped unhurt.

WOMAN OF SILENCE

MRS. EDWARD WHEELER HALL.

YOUNG D. C. GIRL IS POISON PEN VICTIM

Postal Inspectors Seek Person Sending Venomous Letters To Gloria Kennett.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 21.—Pretty sixteen-year-old Gloria Kennett, of Washington, who was personally thanked by Albert King, the Belgians, Gen. John J. Pershing, Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, and other notables for her patriotic services during the war, is prostrate at her home here tonight, the victim of some "poison pen" writer.

Her mother, Mrs. F. K. Kennett, widow of a soldier, is also a nervous wreck because of the epistles, reeking with obscenity and venom, which have been sent to her and her daughter since the publication of an art picture of the pretty Gloria.

Velled threats of bodily harm to the young girl have been repeatedly made by the anonymous letter writer. Postal inspectors and Chief of Police Cadin are seeking the anonymous letter writer.

Russia Is Invited to Turkish Straits Parley

PARIS, Oct. 21.—Premier Poincaré announced this evening that Russia would be invited to participate in the international conference that will settle the future status of the Turkish straits.

The foregoing announcing adds strength to the belief that France is to recognize Russia in the near future. England already has given certain business interests the right to acquire commitments in Russia, but France had held aloof up to the last few weeks. France has a treaty with nationalist Turkey similar to the treaty which Soviet Russia previously had negotiated with the Ankara government.

Prosecutor Promises Indictments of Man and Woman For Double Killing.

MRS. HALL'S MAID WITNESS

Servant Tells of Discord in Rector's Family Over Tangled Love Affairs.

By JOHN C. KLEIN.

International News Service.

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 21.—Evidence which has been prepared for the Somerset county grand jury will, it was reported tonight, result in the indictment and arrest on Tuesday of next week, of a man and woman charged with the murder of Rector Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills in the Golden Rod field of the Phillips farm five weeks ago.

This prediction is confidently made by officials who have been investigating the amazing double murder mystery.

Women on Jury.

Detectives presented to the grand jury, which included three women, certain evidence which they declared would stand in court as substantial proof that the alleged guilty pair had planned and executed the bitter crime. More evidence will be presented on Monday and action by the jury is expected on the following day.

The three women who are sitting on the grand jury are Maud A. Gaston, of Somerville; Agnes Banks, of North Plainfield, and Elizabeth Taylor, of Plainfield.

Both the man and woman, to whom the finger of suspicion now appears to be pointed by the officials in charge, have frequently been mentioned in the case. It is believed that the motive of the woman will be shown to have been a flaming jealousy, and the role of the man a cowardly assistant to the crime for pecuniary reward.

Strife in Families.

Evidence is rapidly leading to the public to the effect that discord and bitterness had long existed in both the Mills and Hall homes, due to the unrestrained, only half concealed, sensuous intrigue of the flabby-natured clergyman and the erotic half sick woman who yielded to his egotistic flattery and stupid middle-aged romanticism. Barbara Touch, a maid employed in the Hall household, was quizzed for two hours today regarding the quarrels of the rector and his wealthy wife.

"We have a much stronger case than the public has been led to believe," remarked Prosecutor Beekman, after the maid left the witness room.

While the public has been led to believe that James Mills, husband of the faithless choir singer, had been her dupe, the fact appears to be, according to the authorities, that strained relations had existed in the sexton's home, the wife admitting to associates that her life with her husband was a loveless existence, while the husband had frequently complained of the woman's conduct.

Sister Is Witness.

Mrs. Elsie Barnhart, a sister of Mrs. Mills, today told authorities of a significant incident at a church party. Mrs. Mills had told Hall she could not attend. Hall went home and told his wife that he was tired and could not go. Later Mrs. Mills changed her mind and so informed Hall. Hall then informed his wife that he would attend the party, which caused his wife to comment
